

A Silent Movie:

In poem & Stills

Script

By: Iv Amenti

Ecclesiastes 5:3

A Dream Comes when there are many cares and speech marks the words of a fool..

Part 1: Deconstruction of a Dreamer

“I am a native Dreamer
Birthmarked by God
To transcend all of what is
And see all that can be”

“The essence of a dream is insight Striking visions of possibility”

“Followed by reliability, Because certainly

Faith without works is dead”

Footnote: And work without faith is shortlived with despair

Part 2:
The Business of the Optimist
Doer

“I prepared myself a space.”

“To carry my dreams”

DON'T MISS THE MIRACLE

A woman with dark hair styled in a high bun, wearing a light pink, long-sleeved, lace-trimmed dress, is sitting on a white wooden bench with decorative spindles. The bench is positioned outdoors against a light-colored horizontal-slatted wall. The backrest of the bench features a pink panel with the text "She Believed She Could So She Did" written in a cursive font. The woman is looking back over her shoulder towards the camera. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.

Part 3:
Aspiration's Advice

"Dear Dreamer!!!"

Seek your every road and field of daffodils to follow your dream. Fill each moment with passion that aligns you to your highest good. Spread your light like a bolt Dreamer!

Many prayers have been prayed for you, in moments where life seemed at it's darkest.

"You are the dared for Dream!"

"The Mighty Dream!"

You are the seedling of God's goodness. A kept promise, that surely, if the work is good, and the hands remain busy, the harvest will surely come, in its due season.

You are not only the Dreamer, but the dream. Take "care" of every woman, man, and elder. Love all the earth's children. Give the world your most authentic self. Continue to believe and dream on..
Sincerely,
Iv Amenti
